

Between Thursday the 12th and Sunday the 15th of September 2013 twelve families and three businesses open their doors to showcase how to make homes more energy efficient, comfortable to live-in and cheaper to run.

A variety of homes are open to visitors this year. These include retrofits of historic and contemporary homes, architect designed new homes and extensions. You can see solar photovoltaic and thermal installations, biomass boilers and air source heat pumps in use. A case study is available for each home detailing the energy efficient improvements made. Householders will also be available to explain how they made choices, designed and adapted their homes.
